

LIGHT HER UP

No idea what to get the woman in your life? Don't risk disappointment come Christmas morning; use our guide to holiday happiness

Zanerobe has launched its first women's collection, so now she'll (hopefully) stop stealing yours. (Tanks, $59.95; T, $69.95; shorts, $59.95)

This classic women's fragrance comes with a scented candle in a festive gold box. You won't even need to wrap it. (Clinique Aromatics Elixir, $85)

Grab her this cheeky polka-dot "Betty Boop" camisole and shorts ($59.90) from Deshabille.

1
Is she sweet?

Indulge her with an Aveda Mesmerise "Paradise" gift pack ($129.95) – natural ingredients and beautiful packaging.

2
Sassy?

3
Sporty?

4
Stylish?

5
Be honest; is she your mum?

Then this Michael Kors designer watch ($239) will be right up her alley.

SKIN GUARDIAN

Go natural

There were a few things that caught our eye about new Australian men's grooming range Eyre. First, among the endless shelves of silver and navy men's products, Eyre's Uluru red and sky-blue packaging stood out. Mostly, though, we dug the idiot-proof, twin-chamber, pump dispenser. What man doesn't love a two-in-one? ($72; eyrebiobotanics.com)

JARGON BUSTER

What the hell is . . . ? Dead Sea Mud

Or rather, why is it good for your skin? Because this sea's natural basin contains the highest concentration of minerals – like magnesium, calcium, potassium and bromine – in the world, 10 times more than ocean water. These minerals act like little messengers to skin cells, telling them what to do to look better. Ahava Dead Sea Laboratories has harnessed all that goodness in its men's range, which consists of a cleansing face gel, shower gel, shampoo, face moisturiser, aftershave balm and hand cream.
